A World of Inspiration

Blending diverse influences and a passion for wellness, TEW Design Studio brings together timeless style and vibrantly personal interiors home

At her dining room table 10 years ago, designer Rima Nasser started TEW Design Studio with a single goal: to create stunning, bespoke interiors while fostering diversity in both people and design. What began as a one-woman venture has since grown into an award-winning design firm celebrated for inspired creativity and uplifting, restorative spaces. Today, as a Palestinian American, Rima leads a diverse team whose cultural perspectives and expertise inform every project, resulting in interiors that reflect the lives and identities of the people who inhabit them.

"Design should be joyful, inclusive, and deeply personal," says Rima. "Our goal is to create spaces that support wellness and express who you are in a way that feels authentic and lasting."

Based in Raleigh, TEW Design Studio brings this philosophy to life in fresh, timeless interior spaces that enhance daily life and promote wellness, with every element curated to reflect the client's story and vision for their home and business.

"Great design isn't about mimicking trends—it's about expressing identity through space," explains Rima. "We love creating those moments with contrasts and layers; where color, texture, and artistry come together to create welcoming moments that still feel grounded."

Central to this philosophy is TEW's collaborative approach: listening deeply to understand each client's rhythms, values, and challenges; drawing on the team's diverse cultural and creative roots to enrich every project; applying science-backed design principles that prioritize mental health, comfort, and joy; and fostering a transparent process that remains inspiring from the first sketch to the final installation.

"Home is more than a place. It should nurture, inspire, and restore," Rima says. "Whether through a few changes to the interior or a full home renovation, we design with the belief that thoughtful spaces can transform lives."
